

What's at the seaside?

Empty shells

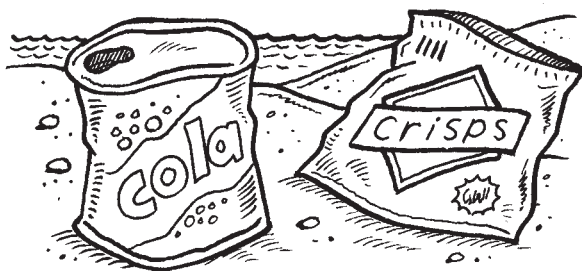

These are made of something hard, in all sorts of colours. The sea cleans them and washes them up. What do you think was inside them?

Stones and pebbles

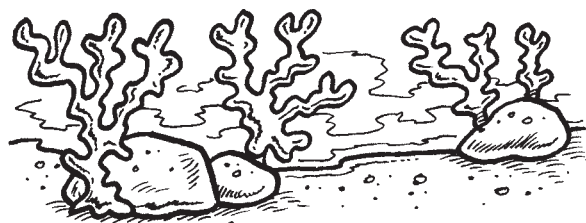

There are lots of these on the beach and in the sea of all different shapes and sizes. Are they alive? How can you tell?

Litter

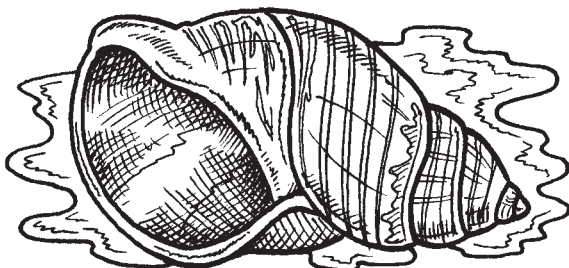

You find this by the seaside sometimes – crisp packets, cola cans and more. Where does it come from?

Seaweed

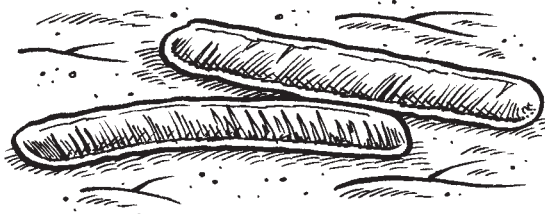

This is usually greeny-brown and grows in the sea. Do you think it is really a weed? Why won't it grow further up with the grass?

Winkles and whelks

You will find these in rock pools or stuck to the rocks. Do they remind you of anything?

Razor shells

These are long, thin shells. Sometimes the creatures inside the shell sticks its foot out. What else hides in a shell? Is it like this?
